

United States District Court
 Eastern District of Michigan
 Southern Division

4

Reference -
 Bio Peter Zammit
 Plaintiff

Case No. 14-14155
 Honorable Nancy D. Edmunds

v.

Reference

FILED
 JAN 14 2015
 CLERK'S OFFICE
 U.S. DISTRICT COURT

Internal Revenue Service, et al.,

Addendum to my Motion for Reconsideration to retain Clinic Defendants because they do
 "act under the color/cover of state law."

Comes now, Bio Peter Zammit, with his addendumattachment of the January 9, 2015 issue of "the Michigan Catholic" that documents and explains the closing/license suspension of Women Center/WomanCare on Southfield Road in Lathrup Village, Michigan
 as well as a call for the "permanent closure, investigation of 4 others."

I ask the court to please, since the court
 "should and must" share all the previous attachments
 of my original motion for consideration (you recently received)

placed on shelf

Case# 14-14155

Case No: 14-14155

See pages 1 + 2

Case

Welcome to Mass:
Following success of Alpha, parish invites friends, family to church | 7

Dominican-style:
Center moves to larger facility, seeks reading tutors | 5

THE MICHIGAN CATHOLIC

Pro-life Judge Nancy J. S. Snyder

www.themichigancatholic.com January 9, 2015

An answer to prayer: Abortion clinics license suspended

Local pro-life advocates call for permanent closure, investigation of 4 others

MIKE STECHSCHULTE
The Michigan Catholic

SOUTHFIELD — If frequent vigils, life chains and petitions are any indication, it seems prayer does work in powerful ways for the local pro-life community.

After a Southfield abortion clinic, the Women's Center on Southfield Road, had its license

"I've been thinking a lot about how the angels rejoiced at the birth of a baby. They were pleased that God became a human being; they were happy for us, that our salvation was unfolding like that. And here we're so dismissive of children — not just the ones that we're aborting, but even those we allow to be born... It's so very common, and it's sad because even the wanted children aren't truly wanted."

— Barb Yealey, 40 Days for Life coordinator

Gregory A. Schemitz | CI
Pro-life advocates walk from Uni-Station to participate in the Mar Life in Washington last January.

'Biggest hun
rights rally returns for
March for L

SARAH MCCARTHY
Catholic News Service

WASHINGTON — "The big man rights rally in the wo one from participant desc

ADDRESS LABEL

The bare facts: Who was the young man who ran off naked in Mark's Gospel? | 11

Praying for a new Pentecost in the Archdiocese of Detroit suspended by the state of Michigan in late November for repeated code violations, local pro-life activists gathered to give thanks and call for its permanent closure during a Dec. 23 news conference.

Barb Yagley, director of the Southfield location of 40 Days for Life, called the suspension a "great blessing" and the result of many hours of prayer in front of the clinic, but added it should also make people consider the consequences of abortion.

"We're asking the community to do a bit of soul-searching as to their perceived need for these types of services," Yagley told The Michigan Catholic. "(The licensing failure) should give people pause for thought about what is it about abortion that distorts or corrupts the people who are practitioners."

According to Lynn Mills of Pro-Life Detroit, the clinic failed several state health inspections and was ordered by the Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulatory Affairs to suspend all surgical procedures, including abortions, pending a March 4 hearing by the state attorney general's office, after an attempted late-term abortion in February 2014 resulted in a woman's hospitalization for a perforated uterus, hemorrhaging, and emotional and physical trauma. The

Mike Wallaert | Special to The Michigan Catholic

The infant Jesus lies in a manger in front of the Women's Center abortion clinic in Southfield just before Christmas as a group of pro-life volunteers stopped to pray for the clinic's permanent closure after the state of Michigan temporarily suspended its license in late November.

abortionist who performed the procedure, Dr. Reginald Sharpe, is also currently under state investigation.

According to the order, the clinic may remain open for physicals and patient counseling during the suspension, and still may refer people seeking abortions to other locations.

Mills said the clinic had failed at least five state inspections in the past year ranging from failure to discuss risks and complications prior to obtaining consent for an abortion, failure to offer ultrasound images to mothers and not having a registered nurse in attendance during an abortion, as well as numerous hygiene and safety violations.

Despite such frequent violations, Mills said, it was the February victim's coming forward that ultimately spurred the state to action.

"I don't think victims know or understand that they can file complaints and be 100 percent anonymous — not with the

Please see Abortion | 2

will return to the nation's capital the annual March for Life Jan. 17. The 42nd rally on the National Mall and march to Capitol Hill marks the anniversary of the Supreme Court's 1973 ruling in the case of Roe v. Wade that invalidated state federal restrictions on abortions, legalizing abortion virtually on demand. Micah Bilger, education director of the Pennsylvania Pro-Life Federation, said she sees the march as an opportunity to move forward from Roe v. Wade.

"The March for Life is, I think, the biggest human rights rally to the world and it's wonderful to be with other people and understand that cause," Bilger said. "It's important for us to stand up in our nation's capital and say, 'Abortion is a human rights injustice and we want to see all life protected.'"

The Pennsylvania Pro-Life Federation usually brings a few hundred participants from around the state, Bilger said. The range of people attending — from high school students to older men and women who have been going for many years — offer opportunity for participants to represent others of diverse backgrounds to share the same beliefs about abortion. "We have a really good, diverse group of people that go down every year," she said. "There are many young people who are going."

Please see March for Life

G. G. Bennett
50733 4th St
New Baltimore,
MI 48047

Case No 14-17155

METROPLEX MI 480
METROPLEX MI 480
15 JAN 2015 PM 5 L
15 JAN 2015 PM 4 L

Attn: Honorable Nancy G. Schwanda
United States District Court
Eastern District Michigan
Southern Division
231 W. Lafayette Blvd
Detroit, MI 48226-3275

